Airport reopening postponed as global virus cases soar

With global coronavirus cases again soaring, Jordan on Tuesday decided to postpone the reopening of its airports to international commercial flights. Minister of State for Media Affairs Amjad Adaileh said that the decision to reopen Jordan's airports to "regular" commercial flights to a number of "low risk" countries was postponed until further notice, pending an improvement of the coronavirus pandemic situation worldwide. Jordan was scheduled to reopen its airport to international flights from a number of countries classified as "low risk" on August 5. "The decision to postpone the reopening of airports was taken after recommendations from health authorities," Adaileh told The Jordan Times on Tuesday.

Funding for JRP reached $226m until mid-July — Planning Ministry

The funding volume for the Jordan Response Plan to the Syrian crisis reached $226 million until mid-July, amounting to 11 per cent of the total fund volume of $2.249 billion, the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation announced on Wednesday. The plan has funded its components by supporting refugees with about $107 million and host communities with around $118 million, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. Grants have been distributed among the components of the plan, the first of which is the electronic system, which amounts to around $136 million. The second component is the additional financing item totalling $82 million, while the bilateral agreements stand at $7 million, the data showed. The component involving Treasury support was unable to obtain financing, according to the ministry.
