Jordan Response Plan funding stands at $644m — Planning Ministry

Funding provided to the Jordan Response Plan to the Syrian Crisis has so far reached $644 million, constituting 28 per cent of the aid set under the scheme totalling $2.49 billion, according to data released by the Ministry of Planning and International Cooperation on Sunday. The ministry's figures showed that the plan's funding shortfall has amounted to some $1.605 billion since the beginning of 2020, out of the total annual budget allocated to support Syrian refugees in Jordan, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. The plan assigned about $155 million to support refugees, some $139 million was allocated to host communities, and around $350 million was also allocated to the Treasury, which was recently added to the plan for 2020, while the institutional capacity building component has not received any funding, showed the ministry's data.

Jordan-Iraq business symposium seeks to tackle trade woes

A Jordanian delegation on Sunday discussed the challenges arising from the Iraqi Cabinet's decision to exempt Jordanian goods, ban imports and protect goods. Talks were held during a virtual joint symposium between the Jordan Chamber of Industry and Iraqi Chamber of Commerce, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. The challenges include the Iraqi Cabinet's resolution No.25 for 2019 to exclude several goods manufactured in Jordan, in addition to "the lack of consistency" in enforcing the resolution, which was suspended and reintroduced numerous times without informing the Jordanian side, Petra said. Talks also covered the continuous amendments to the lists of prohibited imports and protected goods, as well as limitations on importing certain manufactured goods by land.
