'Side by side' with the Kingdom, Germany announces 'record' 729.4m euros in support

Germany, the second-largest bilateral donor to Jordan, will hold talks this week to provide a record volume of 729.4 million euros in support to the Kingdom, German Ambassador to Jordan Birgitta Maria Siefker-Eberle said on Monday. The ambassador stated that the total includes 400 million euros for budget support, water and education. In addition, Germany will offer 100 million euros of humanitarian aid and further support in the military and security field, she added during an interview with The Jordan Times on the occasion of Germany's national day, which she said the German embassy will mark on Tuesday. "You can clearly see that there is no donor fatigue on our side," she said. Since 2012, the German Government has supported the Government of Jordan in dealing with the enormous challenges related to the influx of Syrian refugees. It has "considerably increased" support to more than half a billion euros of annual funding, the envoy said. "We think that Jordan is accomplishing extraordinary results in a conflict-ridden region and has been shouldering a great humanitarian responsibility," Siefker-Eberle added. Touching on "stronger than ever" relations of 66 years, the ambassador said: "We view Jordan as a close partner, as a voice of reason in a troubled region."

King receives EU's Mogherini

King Abdullah expressed Jordan's appreciation for the support provided by the EU in a number of fields. Keenness to expand ongoing coordination and consultation between Jordan and the EU on issues of mutual concern was also stressed during the meeting.
