Tourism sector recovery still long way ahead — stakeholders

Tourism sector representatives voiced their concerns about the industry's recovery, despite the resumption of international flight operations to the Kingdom. "The impact of the pandemic is felt throughout the entire industry, therefore it is very important to have a fresh perspective to support and build a sustainable and resilient tourism sector," Head of the Jordan Inbound Tour Operators Association (JITOA) Awni Kawar told The Jordan Times on Monday. Kawar said that all of the industry's branches have faced unprecedented setbacks, but the recovery of inbound tourism may be further delayed due to many restrictions such as the epidemiological situation, quarantine period, the development of vaccines, in addition to having to restore travellers' confidence after the crisis. "Among the key challenges are the quarantine period and a new set of travel rules, and the most important thing to do currently is to contain the virus," Kawar noted. "The Ministry of Tourism and Antiquities has established many strategies and solutions to liquidate bank guarantees," Kawar added. He also pointed out that the ministry's work is based on "A penny saved is a penny earned" principle, but eventually there should be a long-term solution.

Parliamentary elections to be held on time — IEC

The Independent Election Commission (IEC) on Monday stressed that parliamentary elections will be held on time and all efforts are exerted to ensure the success of "this important democratic process in the smoothest and most transparent manner". "The elections will be held on time, but based on the health situation in the Kingdom, the IEC has the authority to designate a different date from that officially designated to hold the elections," IEC Spokesperson Jihad Momani said. The commission assigned October 6, 7, and 8 as the designated days for individuals to officially register to run for the elections that will be held on November 10. A Royal Decree was issued recently directing the concerned agencies to hold parliamentary elections in accordance with the provisions of the law.
