Ericsson will provide a fully managed end-to-end multivendor operations service to include nationwide network operations, field support and maintenance for Omantel's fixed-line access, 2G, 3G, 4G and future 5G access.

Oman's central bank announced to provide OMR 8bn ($20.8 billion) in extra liquidity to banks as one of several measures aimed at supporting the economy. The central bank has asked banks to cut banking fees, adjust their capital and credit ratios, and allow repayment postponements for up to six months amongst other measures.

- Lowering Capital Conservation Buffers (CCB) is positive for banks in order to remain above minimum regulatory requirements, if in case, their capital takes a hit due to higher provisioning requirement.
- Increasing the lending ratio means that in case of deposit flight, regulatory maximum is not violated.
- Deferring the risk classification of loans pertaining to Government projects for the period of 6 months. This is an ideal move in the current scenario and offers a much-needed respite to troubled banking exposures.
- Banks are encouraged to consider reducing existing fees related to various banking service and to abstain from introducing new ones during 2020. It is a welcome respite for borrowers, however, it might affect banks' efforts to maintain/improve profitability through fee income.
- Reduction of interest rates is always a welcome move in order to encourage economic growth. However, for banks, it might add pressure to their net interest margins.

The events of the previous week — some of the biggest declines in stocks in decades, a crash in oil price, and alarming strains in the crucial US government bond market — finally sent the dollar on its biggest rally in almost five years.

Amid coronavirus pandemic escalation, S&P expects growth to head sharply lower against a backdrop of volatile markets and growing credit stress. It forecasts a global recession this year, with 2020 GDP rising just 1.0%-1.5%. The risks remain firmly on the downside. Central banks all around the world have swung into action and are undertaking some combination of sharply reduced policy rates, resumed assets purchase and liquidity injections.

Some of the economic stimulus programs announced at global level last week were:

- US administration is considering sending most American adults a check for USD 1,000 as part of efforts to stimulate the economy and help workers whose jobs have been disrupted by business closures because of the pandemic.
- US Fed announced it will increase its holdings of Treasury securities by at least USD 500bn and its holdings of agency mortgage-backed securities by at least USD 200bn.
- UK launched GBP 330bn lifeline of loan guarantees and provide a further GBP 20bn in tax cuts, grants and other help for businesses
- European Central Bank announced a massive €750 billion program of bond buying.

Recommendation:

Escalation in coronavirus pandemic, various central banks' stimuli packages and global growth fears remained the key themes this week.

Within the GCC, various stimuli announced by Governments and Central Banks largely failed to provide a much-needed support to the stock markets. We believe that the situation is currently grim, with limited data available on disruption of supply chain for many companies. For banks and financial institutions, any reduction in GDP growth outlook for this year might lead to deterioration in financial assets (as carried under IFRS 9, a more forward-looking accounting principle) and we may observe assets transitioning to Stage 2, in addition to any unanticipated impact on profitability and capital adequacy from a rapid increase in non-performing assets.

As more and more countries go into semi- or complete lockdowns, we believe that the world is moving in the right direction to control the pandemic. However, it is certainly going to affect economic activity negatively.

We advise wait and see approach as the volatility has risen to unprecedented levels.
